What is my location?

We opted to center the map on your current location when possible, using the html5 geolocation feature. When available, you can also see your location address.

Where am I? Your location coordinates are provided by your browser, and we can't access them without your consent. We do not keep any record of the location of our users, so feel free to allow the geolocation feature if you find it convenient. Visit this page (</geolocation>) to see how to enable geolocation with all major browsers.

If you don't want to share your geolocation, the map will just be centered on a default GPS location.

Satellite view

Simply click on the "Satellite" button on the map to switch to the Map Satellite view of the chosen GPS location.
